

ABSTRACT

An electrically modifiable multilevel non-volatile memory has autonomous refresh means. The multilevel memory has a real-time clock delivering pulses to periodically activate an operation for refreshing the memory cells of the main matrix. The memory has application to the field of large-capacity memories, for example, several tens of megabits and more.